

WOUNDED MURDERED

Negro Troops Make Serious Charges.

PRESENT SORRY SIGHT

Former Captives Have Little or No Clothing.

El Paso, Tex., June 30.—Mexican troops were the aggressors in the battle of Carrizal and after the struggle wounded United States troopers left on the battlefield were killed by Carranza soldiers.

These were the declarations of negro troopers, survivors of a bloody fight with a superior Mexican force, victims twice of mobs that stoned them, and more than once gripped with the fear of execution for their part in the Boyd expedition, who were brought to the border from Chihuahua City on a special train and turned over to General George Bell, Jr., commander of the El Paso base.

With them came Lem H. Spillsbury, the Mormon scout who guided Captain Charles T. Boyd and his little command over the trail that led to the Carrizal encounter.

The troopers were quartered at Fort Bliss, awaiting orders from General Punston at San Antonio.

Private William D. Gibson declared that he was certain that after the Carrizal battle the Mexicans went over it and killed several Americans who were wounded, but still alive.

Gibson's assertion was corroborated by Private Archie Jones and Luther Alexander.

Troopers Claim Robbery.

Numerous others of the troopers claimed they had been robbed of money and valuables following their capture.

Spillsbury, on the other hand, charged Captain Boyd with "bullheadedness" in advancing in the face of a certain Mexican attack.

Thousands gathered in El Paso and Juarez to witness the arrival of Spillsbury and the negro troopers.

In Juarez a big crowd at the Mexican Central railroad station viewed the disembarking of the prisoners, but gave no outward evidence of enmity.

They were jeered as they marched from the station, but in the main the Mexican populace acted with reserve.

Once, the crowd in Juarez acted with genuine good humor. That was when the troopers descended from the train.

Stripped of their uniforms after the fight of Carrizal and with restoration only partly made, the dusky soldiers were decked out in striking and motley garb.

Their appearance brought forth a chorus of laughter.

When the formalities of the transfer had been ended and the Americans marched off the international bridge to El Paso they were greeted by a vast roar of cheering from the thousands gathered there.

However, the authorities soon squelched the demonstration to the great disappointment of the participants.

Bodies of American Soldiers Killed in Carrizal Battle.

Columbus, N. M., June 30.—The bodies of Captain Boyd and Lieutenant Adair, Tenth United States cavalry, with those of the negro troopers slain in the Carrizal battle, were left in the broiling sun, to be devoured by wild animals.

So says Captain Morey, surviving hero of the battle.

Six United States cavalrymen, missing since the Carrizal fight, may still be wandering in the Chihuahua desert or have perished from thirst and hunger.

Captain Morey, before leaving for El Paso to be treated for his wounds, said the negro troopers still unaccounted for are believed to have escaped to the barren hills in the retreat from the battlefield.

Storm Fatal to Three.

Billings, Mont., June 30.—Three persons are dead as a result of a tornado storm in eastern Montana. Mrs. Charles Stone and her two children were drowned near Winifred in the Judith Gap country when a cloudburst rushed down a deep coulee upon the tent in which they were living.

COLONEL W. C. BROWN.

Commander of Tenth Cavalry Attacked at Carrizal.

FARMERS' TICKET SWEEPS PRIMARY

Fargo, N. D., June 30.—The prospect is that every present officer seeking nomination for re-election at the hands of the Republican party, with the exception of those who bore the endorsement of the Farmers' Non-partisan league, has been defeated, according to returns available.

The indications are the entire state ticket of Republican candidates endorsed by the farmers' organization, have been nominated. The possible exception is Carl Jorgenson, candidate for state auditor, and even there the run is in favor of Carl Kositzky, his opponent.

With Lynn J. Frazier's nomination for governor, nominations of A. T. Kraabel for lieutenant governor, by a wide margin over O. J. Sorlie, Thomas Hall over J. L. Hjort for secretary of state; William Langer over H. J. Linde for attorney general; S. A. Olness over Walter Taylor for insurance commissioner; T. N. Hagen over Robert Flint for insurance commissioner, and of three nonpartisan candidates over the present railroad commissioners, have been accomplished.

United States Senator Porter J. McCumber's lead continues strong and he has won about two to one over Governor L. B. Hanna.

D. H. McArthur retains his lead for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

GREAT NORTHERN BUYS LINE

Secures Complete Control of South Dakota Central.

St. Paul, June 30.—The Great Northern railroad purchased from C. O. Kalman of Kalman, Matteson & Wood the South Dakota Central railroad. Mr. Kalman purchased this road June 12 at a receiver's sale at Sioux Falls. Mr. Kalman reorganized the company, which was to be known as the Watertown and Sioux Falls railway, with a capital stock of $1,500,000. Mr. Kalman will continue as president of the new company. The road is 103 miles long, of standard gauge. It runs from Sioux Falls to Watertown and the Great Northern connects in both of these cities. Under the direction of Ralph Budd, assistant to the president of the Great Northern, the line will be improved at a cost of $200,000 and will be well equipped. It will offer an improved service to a large and prosperous territory.

AMERICANS LEAVE MEXICO

Reliable Reports Show Very Few Remain in Country.

Washington, June 30.—Virtually all Americans except those who have refused to leave are out of Mexico. Dispatches to the state and war departments report the departure of more than 1,700 refugees.

About 1,000 Americans from Tampico and Vera Cruz will arrive at Galveston on the tender Dixie and the oil ship Wylie.

More than 400 are quartered at Vera Cruz on the battleship Nebraska. All will be brought north by the transport Hancock.

On the west coast 200 Americans are on the cruiser Cleveland and the supply ship Glacier. They will go to San Diego, Cal. There are sixty-seven on the cruiser Colorado at Manzanillo.

OFFICIALS WANT WRITTEN REPLY

Await Word From Carranza on Other Demands.

SITUATION APPEARS EASIER

Washington Government is Rushing All Possible Preparations for Action in the Event the Mexican Answer is of an Unfavorable Nature.

Washington, June 30.—The Washington government still awaits full compliance with its demands by the de facto authorities of Mexico.

Release by General Carranza's order of the American prisoners taken at Carrizal has averted the probability of immediate retaliatory steps. It is possible that it has also helped to pave the way toward an attempt at peaceful settlement of the whole border situation.

It is the written answer from Mexico that the American government desires to see.

While the imprisonment of the American soldiers was a matter of immediate moment, the secretary indicated, nevertheless, there remain to be answered the largest demand for the United States for a definite expression from Carranza as to whether he is determined to pursue the threat to attack the American forces if they attempt to move in any direction other than towards the American border. To be satisfactory the answer to this demand, the state department insists, must be a virtual repudiation of the Trevino warning to Pershing.

Must Suppress Bandits.

Even then, before considering a proposal of mediation for the adjustment of the question as to how long the American troops are to continue on Mexican soil, the state department, it was indicated, must have some evidence of Carranza's willingness and ability to patrol the border district effectively and suppress the bandits.

The American government, it was pointed out at the department, has consistently refused to accept any proffer of mediation in matters affecting the lives of American citizens.

It can not accept mediation so long as the outrages of the bandits are permitted to continue without hindrance from the Carranza authorities.

It is recalled that in the recent notice issued by the American government to the powers of Central and South America it was stated that if hostilities result from the present situation they will be directed by the United States against a government that has "aided and encouraged" the bandits.

May Consider Mediation.

The United States, it was indicated, might consider a proposal of mediation, looking to an agreement for joint action by the military forces of the two countries against the bandits, though even that was questionable.

Under no circumstances, the department officials insisted, would a proposal of arbitration be entertained.

Intimations have come. It is understood, that Carranza intends to back up the orders issued to General Trevino directing that American troops be attacked if they moved in any direction in Mexico except toward the border.

Officials are fully prepared for a reply of that character, despite the fact that the prisoners taken at Carrizal have been promptly surrendered on demand.

They expect, however, that the reaffirmation of position will be made in a note free from hostile language.

TROOP TRAINS ARE GIVEN RIGHT OF WAY.

Chicago, June 30.—Reports from St. Louis, Indianapolis, Memphis and other junction points indicated that railroads were giving troop trains right of way over all other traffic, even to sidetracking of regular limited trains.

ENLARGES NAVAL PROGRAM

Senate Committee Provides for Four Dreadnoughts.

Washington, June 30.—The senate naval committee agreed unanimously to amendments to the naval bill providing for the construction of four dreadnoughts and four battle cruisers in 1917 and completion in three years of the $500,000,000 building program urged by the navy general board.

This is the program recommended by a subcommittee after conference with Secretary Daniels. As passed by the house the bill provides for only five capital ships next year and contemplates no continuing building policy.

Here are five of the officers of the Tenth Cavalry, several companies of which were attacked by Carranza soldiers at Carrizal, Mexico, Wednesday, June 21.

THE EMERALD ISLE

In Area It Is a Little Smaller Than
Our State of Maine.

ITS SLUMP IN POPULATION.

One of the Few Sections of the Civilized World That Have Decreased in Numbers in the Past Century—Its Beautiful Lakes and Rivers.

The historical and political importance of Ireland has created in the minds of many Americans an exaggerated idea of the island's physical proportions and the density of its population.

The whole of Ireland embraces an area slightly less than the state of Maine, but with a population six times as dense. In comparison with the governing country it is three-fifths as large as England and Wales, with one-ninth the population. The island is one of the very few sections of the civilized world where the population has shown a marked decrease during the last century.

The first census of the island, taken in 1821, recorded a population almost 50 per cent larger than at the present time, while the census of 1841 showed the high water mark of more than 8,000,000, nearly twice the present population. This remarkable decrease, due largely to emigration, began after the famine brought about by the destructive disease which attacked the potato crop of 1845. This calamity resulted in the withdrawal of more than a million acres from cultivation within two years.

Incidentally the potato, which has played such an important role in the life of Ireland during the last 300 years, is not indigenous to the island, but was one of the food gold mines discovered by the Spaniards in their conquest of Peru. The country is indebted to Sir Walter Raleigh for her "Irish" potatoes, as it was he who brought them from what is now North Carolina and planted them on his estate near Cork in 1585.

Ireland lies on the western rim of what was once a part of continental Europe. It has numerous mountains, the highest being the McGillicuddy reeks (3,414 feet) in the Killarney region, but there is no mountain chain or elevated "backbone." There is a more or less well defined plain, however, the distinguishing feature of which is its bogs—the black bog producing the famous peat fuel, differentiated from the brown bogs of the mountains. If the whole island were brought to a mean level it would rise 400 feet above the sea.

The lakes, or loughs, of Ireland are among its most widely appreciated physical characteristics, their scenic beauty being the inspiration of poets, painters and musicians. Nor have the Irish rivers been overlooked in appraisals of the island's beauties. The Shannon, which flows for 250 miles, is the longest water course in the United Kingdom. It is navigated by large steamers for half its length and is connected with Dublin by means of the Grand and the Royal canals.

Although coal is found in most of the thirty-two counties into which the island is divided and there is considerable iron ore, mining is not an important industry. Gold was being mined in a modest way in County Wicklow at the time of the rebellion of 1798, but the works were destroyed and the source of the metal has never been rediscovered.

Agriculture and stock raising are the chief occupations of the inhabitants.
At one time the woolen manufactures of the island were formidable rivals of English factories, but hostile legislation gave the industry a check from which it has never recovered. As the Irish have raised flax for centuries, the manufacture of linen early became one of the important industries of the country. Irish whiskey is an important article of export, and one of the largest breweries in the world is located at Dublin.

Shipbuilding in the great yards at Belfast is one of the most widely known Irish activities, and the de-

WOMAN'S REALM

Porcelin Dog to China Cat

BY MARGARET MASON

(Written for the United Press)
Said the porcelain dog to the china cat,

As they sat ensconced on the crochet mat:

"It's great to be back from the antiquary."
Said the china cat to the dog: "Oh very."

New York, June 30—The answer to what next, by dears, is what not. Now what do you think of that? Nothing more nor less than the old fashioned whatnot is what we may expect if the craze for Victorian modes extends from our clothes to our homes at the rate it is spreading.

At the moment of going to press we have with us in the midst of our smartest homes today all the where-withal to deck that atrocity of old-fashioned taste, the whatnot, so why not go the limit and drag it down from the garret, dust off its shelves and set it up in the chosen corner. Truly the porcelain dog and the china cat, the glass flowers and the framed sampler can never feel at home outside a whatnot environment. Indeed it is only fitting that we should have a proper setting for our hoopskirts and scollops, our fuses and bell sleeves, our shoulder capes and poke bonnets; hence undoubtedly the revival of the smirking porcelain poodle door-steps, the green and yellow china parrots swaying in gilded hoops, the worsted embroidered firescreens and footstools that now infest the truly modern and artistic hearth and home.

The crocheted and braided rag rugs are on all our smartest floors, lying in wait for the voluminous silken skirts of the good old days to trail over them. But alas! no silken skirts can touch them now in these the days of highwater ballet effects.

Daguerreotypes of grandpa as a soldier and grandma as a bride adorn the mantelpiece, sharing the honors with an urn-shaped potpourri jar of purple glass. Our smartest billeted-doux are penned with gay-hued quills that rest as in days of yore in little painted glass jars half filled with gleaming shot. On rush bottomed chairs we rest (?), whose straight backs are festive with painted garlands on their painted cross pieces. The castor and the urn-shaped knife and fork cases reign on our antique Sheraton buffets. Majolica fruit baskets, soup tureens and colored glass cake stands have broken in on our smartest tables and are being broken in our smartest kitchens.

Above stairs we spurn electric lights and grope our divers ways to bed with bayberry candles in pewter candle sticks equipped with quaint and ancient snuffers. Crawling under the Rose of Sharon patchwork quilt we fall asleep to dream that we may yet be overtaken by a visitation of gilded pine cones, gilded rolling pins, gilded ginger beer jugs, stuffed melon pincushions, castles-in-the-air and war wreaths under glass for all the world like mushrooms "sous cloche" only not so gastronomically edifying. No doubt we'll wake screaming and jump from bed only to stumble over the porcelain poodle and the china cat.

Attributes Great Change to Master Medicine—"I'm Only Too Glad to Recommend Tanlac", Well Known Minneapolis Man Frankly Asserts

Minneapolis, Minn., June 30—"Tanalac has helped my son where all other medicines failed," said Fred Michale, a laborer, who lives at 3913 Thirtieth avenue, south, recently, when telling of the relief his son, Fred Michale, an employee of the Diamond Ice Co., gained through use of the Master Medicine.

"My son suffered for a long time with stomach trouble," he continued. "His appetite was poor, he was constipated and had gripping pains in his stomach. He was unable to work for more than a year."

"He has now taken four bottles of Tanlac and is back at his work every day. The pains no longer bother him and his appetite is fine now. I am grateful for Tanlac as my boy's health means everything. I'm only too glad to recommend Tanlac."

Tanalac, the Master Medicine, is especially beneficial for stomach, liver and kidney trouble, catarrhal complaints, rheumatism, nervousness, sleeplessness, loss of appetite and the like.

Tanalac is now being specially introduced and explained in Brainerd at Johnson's Pharmacy.—Adv.

FOR YOUNG FOLKS

A Sleepy Time Story About Some Very Clever Squirrels.

WHAT HAPPENED IN A GROVE.

Amusing Adventures of a Pair of Intelligent Collie Dogs—Many Things of Interest and Information For Little People—Strange Story of a Wait.

Well, kiddies, said Uncle Ben to Polly Ann and little Ned, I am going to tell you an amusing story about DOGS AND SQUIRRELS.

Laddie and Brownie are adventurous collie dogs. They live in the Kansas city of Kansas City, and their play yard is a grove of trees. Every morning they fare forth to this miniature forest, and woo betide the squirrel that loiters too long upon the ground.

With a furious barking and "woofing" and snorting, Laddie and Brownie rush back and forth among the trees, seeking whom they may devour or at least to have fun with the little wood folks.

At first the squirrels were greatly disturbed by the terrible antics of Laddie and Brownie. In the midst of nut gathering they could not spare time to scramble clear to the tops of trees every time the two dogs came along.

One day the dogs frightened a squirrel that had just found a nut. With the nut in his mouth Chatterer rushed up a tree and clung to one of the lower branches. Laddie and Brownie stood beneath and barked. In his rage Chatterer opened his mouth to hurl invectives at the dogs and the nut fell out of his mouth.

It landed right on top of Laddie's head. In the display of temper that followed, Laddie seized the nut between his teeth, crunched his jaws down and cracked it.

Presently, when the dogs were barking up another tree, Chatterer descended and ate the "goody" from the nut Laddie had so obligingly cracked.

So that's the game they play. The squirrels often drop nuts and the dogs in furious rage crush the hard shells with their teeth. Both seem to enjoy it, and it saves the squirrels a lot of work.

A Fern That Walks.

The walking fern is a native of the United States. It is found in certain localities of the eastern states and westward to Kansas, usually growing on moss covered rocks, or near the bases of cliffs. The fronds, when fully developed, are from six to twelve or fifteen inches long, their tips reaching down into the moss or crevices of the rocks, where they develop young plants of two or three tiny fronds. At a later stage, a mass of fine rootlets forms and holds the little rosettes in position. After several months the long frond to which the little plant is attached becomes withered, and the young fern sends out fronds which produce new plants. It is said that in a few years a single plant under favorable conditions will develop into a whole colony.

A PRINCESS' LOT

The Grand Duchess of Luxemburg Is Closely Guarded.

REPORTED TO BE ENGAGED.

Barely Twenty-one Years Old, the Youngest Ruler in Europe, Marie Adelaide Is Practically a Prisoner in Her Own Palace.

It is reported that the young Grand Duchess of Luxemburg will marry soon, but the name of the fortunate bridegroom to be is withheld.

Marie Adelaide is one of the most pathetic as well as one of the most romantic figures in the world today. This pretty young girl, barely twenty-one years old, was adored by her prosperous little country before the war broke out. Today she is practically a prisoner in her own palace. Unable to get out without a military escort and forced to look from her prison windows upon a people starving, terrified and forced to live upon charity, she has striven bravely to assert her rights and those of her people in the face of the overwhelming power of the German empire, but the struggle is naturally a hopeless one.

To complete her misery great pressure has been brought to bear upon her to marry a German prince, but this she has refused to do, as she bitterly resents the German invasion of her country. For more than a year the Kaiser's agents have worked hard to persuade the youngest ruler in Europe to become the bride of a German prince, the object being to insure the future control of Luxemburg. So strong did this pressure become that the spirited young duchess revolted against it and, stamping her foot on the floor of her palace, exclaimed:

"I really must be left alone. If I cannot find peace in my own palace I shall soon be forced to seek it in a convent."

The grand duchess is the oldest of six sisters. Her family is a branch of the house of Orange, which rules in Holland. When Wilhelmina became queen of Holland she could not succeed to Luxemburg because of the Salic law. A cousin of Wilhelmina's became Grand Duke of Luxemburg. When he died in 1912, leaving only girl children, the Luxemburg parliament passed a new law making his daughters eligible to the throne.

Harry Wheelock says in his Journal that it was not the Minnesota Editorial association that asked Frank B. Kellogg to become a candidate for the nomination of United States senator, but a strong group of republican editors of that association, and that the invitation and subsequent work of these men produced results.

Trim your trees. If there is any time that the advantage of well trimmed trees is appreciated by the public who travel the thoroughfares of a city it is in rainy weather when the limbs hang low over the walks and let a shower of water down every time one comes in contact with them. Shade trees, well kept, are very desirable and help beautify a city, but when left to grow and spread without proper direction from the owner they become a nuisance. Sunshine and fresh air is more essential to health and happiness than shade and dampness, and much more endurable. And in addition to this if you would have your trees beautiful and grow in proper shape nothing is more necessary than proper trimming.

Our Allen township correspondent takes the proposed game preserve establishment entirely too seriously and expends all his force by applying epithets to those who think game preserves are of some public benefit. Game preserves are not new, neither are they set apart until all parties interested have had an opportunity to be heard, the arguments weighed and a decision made in accordance with the facts. Petitions must be presented to the game commissioner from people in the territory and others interested even before the matter is considered and there is no disposition to take the rights of the people from them. It was to be expected that there would be some opposition to the setting aside of any considerable strip of country abounding in game for the purpose of protecting it in order that the famous hunting districts in this and adjoining counties may not be entirely robbed of the game by pot hunters or by hunters who flock to Minnesota as the Mecca they are seeking where they can satisfy their greed for the sport that is afforded in the forests, streams and bush. It is no selfish motive that prompts the establishment of these game preserves, but in every case there are those who live in the sections selected who feel aggrieved, and without stopping to consider the advantage in protecting the game that it may increase and radiate out to the forests and not become extinct, they feel that they have a grievance. The game preserves establish lines within which no game animals may be killed or taken but these lines do not confine the deer, birds or other animals to that area and once out of it they are public prey in the open season the same as at any other point in the state. Game preserves are being established in the vicinity of Bemidji and other places in Minnesota and the people seem to be well satisfied that it is a good work, well done.

GERMANS SHIFT ATTACK

(By United Press)

Paris, June 30.—An official dispatch says that the Germans last night shifted their attack to the west bank of the Meuse and delivered several violent attacks with liquid fire.

IN EARLY STAGES OF GRAND OFFENSIVE

Berlin, June 30.—There is little doubt here that the allies are in the early stages of their grand offensive, the British artillery assault leaves this impression.

Advance of Czar's Forces in Bukovina Gives Them Almost Free Access to the Carpathian Mountains and Railway Running to the Capital of Galicia.

London, June 30.—In a Russian attack over a front of twenty-five miles, extending eastward from Kolomea, in Galicia, the Austrians have been compelled to retire on a part of the front in the region of Kolomea and southward. The Austrians valiantly attempted to hold back the oncoming Russians, but, according to Vienna, Emperor Francis Joseph's warriors finally were compelled to give way before superior forces.

In this fighting and also in battles near Kut, in Bukovina, the Austrians suffered heavy casualties.

The Russian successes in this region seemingly give them almost free access to the Carpathian mountains and to the railway line running northwest from Kolomea to Lemberg, the capital of Galicia.

On the central part of the Russian front, in Volhynia, the violent battles around Ljowka and in the region of Sokul continues unabated. Farther north the Germans have followed heavy bombardments of various positions with infantry attacks, which Petrograd says were all repulsed.

French Repel Verdun Attack.

The Germans again have made an effort to win French positions west of Hill 304, northwest of Verdun, after a bombardment extending from the hill to the Avocourt woods. The curtain of fire of the French and the fire of their infantry put down the attack, however.

The British along their part of the front in France and Belgium are keeping up their heavy bombardment of German trenches and sending out raiding parties who are reported to be doing effective work.

In the Austro-Italian theater the Italians in the Trentino region are still driving back the Austrians and recovering positions taken from them in the Austrian offensive.

The Austrians also have opened a vigorous offensive against the Italian eastern front around Monte San Michele and San Martino and Vernigiano. Here, however, according to Vienna, the Italians are being partly repulsed by Austrian counter attacks.

THORNTON TO LEAD

G. O. P. STATE FIGHT

St. Paul, June 30.—Eric L. Thornton of Benson was chosen chairman of the new Republican state central committee and will manage the party's campaign in Minnesota.

Mr. Thornton is a young attorney and never was prominent in politics until this year. He was a district delegate to the Republican national convention at Chicago and was active in support of Frank B. Kellogg in the primary campaign for the senatorial nomination.

In addition to Eric L. Thornton of Benson, the new state chairman, these officers of the Republican committee were chosen:

Secretary, Josiah H. Chase, Minneapolis.

Treasurer, Fred B. Snyder, Minneapolis.

The Democratic nominees postponed the election of a chairman and a new state committee until July 13.

SIR ROGER CASEMENT.

Leader of Irish Rebellion Is Sentenced to Death.

SIR ROGER CASEMENT SENTENCED TO DEATH

London, June 30.—Sir Roger Casement has been found guilty of high treason and sentenced to death.

Sir Roger received the sentence with the utmost composure and smiled at friends in the courtroom.

The ending of the historic trial came shortly before 4 o'clock, when the jury, which had been out less than an hour, brought in its verdict against the Irish knight, accused of bringing about the recent Irish revolution.

The session of the court was given over to arguments of counsel and the charge to the jury.

Sir Roger's chief counsel, Alexander Sullivan, who collapsed in court the previous day, was unable to appear and his argument was taken by Armetus Jones, assistant counsel for the defense.

The attorney general, Sir Frederick Smith, summed up the case for the prosecution, after which the lord chief justice delivered his charge.

After Sir Roger had been sentenced Daniel J. Bailey, private soldier, who had been held as his accomplice, was placed in the dock.

The chief justice directed the jury to return a verdict of not guilty and Bailey was discharged.

Many Infantile Paralysis Cases.

New York, June 30.—An epidemic of infantile paralysis is spreading so rapidly here that the health department has organized a special force of twenty experts to fight it. So far 206 cases have been reported in Brooklyn and twenty in Manhattan, from which there have been twelve deaths.

KEEPING PEACE ON THE FRONTIER

Texans Believe Northern Mexico Should Be Annexed.

EXPERT ON NATIONAL GUARD

Brigadier General Mills Has Intimate Knowledge of Citizen Soldier—Loyalists Likely to Get a Lambasting. Congressmen and Clerks—Senator James as a Prophet.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, June 30.—(Special.)—Secretary of War Baker's action in calling out the national guard for service along the Mexican frontier brings into notice Brigadier General Albert L. Mills, chief of the division of militia affairs. General Mills is a native of New York and was graduated from the United States Military academy in 1870. He has had many years of experience as a cavalry commander and probably knows more about the actual condition of the national guard than any other man in the United States. In 1902 he was awarded the congressional medal of honor "for distinguished gallantry in action near Santiago de Cuba, July 1, 1896, in encouraging those near him by his bravery and coolness after being shot through the head and entirely without sight."

Texans Much Interested.

From the beginning of Mexican troubles Texans and others along the southern border have been much interested, none more so than Postmaster General Burleson. Just at present one Texas congressman is deeply interested. Most of the news is down in John Garner's district. Garner has always been willing to let the Mexicans wear themselves out, but when it comes to interfering with Texans in his district he will be as ready as the next man for a fight.

What most Texans and those who live in New Mexico and Arizona think is that the best thing that could happen to the northern part of Mexico is to have it annexed to the United States. They believe that it would mean peace and prosperity for those people.

Burleson Not Tempted.

Postmaster General Burleson was not tempted by the Texas senatorial bait. He feels sure of four years more of the Wilson administration, and he sees no reason why he should not continue in his present post. He is one of the president's trusted political advisors, and such a man is handy to have about at all times. Burleson looks on the Texas senatorial contest with a great deal of interest, however.

Denouncing Lobbyists.

It will not be long before there is another denunciation of lobbyists, as there are sure to be a great many in Washington during the session of congress. Many people want things done in congress, and they will be lobbyists or patriots, according to the point of view. It is scarcely to be expected that the women who want the suffrage amendment, the people who want prohibition, the workmen who want stricter labor laws, the opponents of large military expenditures, will resist being called lobbyists, especially if used as a term of reproach. But there are the men who want higher tariff rates, those who want large expenditures for military purposes, those who want legislation which will benefit themselves or friends. They will be the real lobbyists. The lobbyist is the fellow who wants to get through something you think he should not have. If he is for you he is a patriot leading his influence for a great cause.

One Congressman, Eight Clerks.

Some one was able to force members of the house to publish the names of their clerks. Congressman Young of North Dakota comes to the front with eight clerks among whom he has to divide the $1,500 yearly allowed a congressman for clerk hire. There has been a suspicion that some of the congressmen had done most of their own correspondence and saved for themselves the $125 per month allowed for clerks.

Tribute to Ollie James.

Senator Kenyon of Iowa took a rather sarcastic shot at Senator Ollie James of Kentucky when the sugar bill was under consideration. He said: "Men of various attainments secure seats in the senate. Some are particularly noted for wisdom, others for oratory, a few for looks. But there is one senator, able, affable, brilliant and likable, who, when this vote is taken today, must be crowned as the only really successful prophet of the senate."

Then he went on to quote from a speech made by Senator James on the sugar question, in which the Kentuckian three years ago predicted that free sugar had come to stay.

Some Get Bitten.

Congressman Moore of Philadelphia was talking about mosquitoes during the consideration of the agricultural bill and expressed the opinion that the government ought to do all it could to eradicate the pests.

"I came from a place where they do have mosquitoes," interjected Minority Leader Mann of Chicago.

"Oh," responded Moore, "I have been bitten by mosquitoes in Chicago."

"Nearly all such get bitten," was Mann's parting shot.

A Bird Mystery.

One of the most curious and interesting of the unsolved problems relating to bird migration is connected with the chimney swift, more often called the chimney "swallow," a very common and well known bird of the eastern United States. After the breeding season the flocks drift slowly south and concentrate in vast numbers on the northern coast of the gulf of Mexico. Then they disappear as completely as if they hibernated under the water or in the mud, according to the old belief regarding birds in general. The last week in March they appear again on the gulf coast. Their hiding place during the intervening five months is still the swift's secret.

Aeroplane "Loops."

The first person ever to "loop the loop" in an aeroplane was M. A. Pezoud, in May, 1913. The first woman to "loop the loop" was Miss Davies, but she was a passenger. The first woman to "loop the loop" alone was Miss Katherine Stinson. Probably the record for "looping the loop"—although unofficial—is that listed as performed by a Russian who is said to have made forty-six loops continuously. — New York Times.

WELCOME JEFFERSON INSPECTION PARTY

PROCLAMATION BY MAYOR BEISE

Having Brainerd on the Jefferson highway means putting Brainerd on the map. We have this one grand opportunity tomorrow when the inspectors of the proposed route pass through our county. Local organizations are using all their efforts to make a good impression, and while all our citizens who possess automobiles should and will greet the party at Midland, on Mille Lacs lake, I request that our citizens remaining at home show their interest by greeting the party upon its arrival at the Ransford hotel, or along the route as convenient. Display your flags and banners in profusion and make this a gala day. Every effort will be appreciated, and whatever you may do will not be unappreciated.

R. A. BEISE,
Mayor.

GULL LAKE PARK

Big Improvements on Gull Lake at Baker-Seaton Co.
Platting

The beautiful 162 acres on the north end of Gull lake known as the old Berg place, has undergone wonderful changes within the last few months. The Baker-Seaton Co. of Minneapolis, have had it transformed into a beautiful park. They have spent several thousand dollars beautifying the tract and have erected a new hotel, known as Grand View Lodge, and several cottage sites in which the park has been platted.

Much money will be spent the coming year by the company in erecting cottages and other buildings and improving the avenues and boulevards running through the tract. With the advent of good roads from Brainerd north past the park, it is safe to say this will be a very popular resort in a few years and one of which Brainerd should be proud, and should lend every encouragement.

BRAINERD'S OLDEST STORIES TODAY

This is the story of two offices with one key. G. W. Chadbourne and E. C. Bane occupy offices in the First National bank building. The other day Mr. Bane left, locked the door very carefully and then went on a fishing trip with R. J. Hartley, John Krekeberg and others. He never came back until the next day.

Chadbourne had been at the bank, hatless and coatless, also keyless, because his key was in his coat pocket. When he came back, he could not enter. He never got his hat or coat that day and in addition, his lodge books were in escrow and he could not get at them either to attend a meeting that night.

"Nearly became a citizen of Brainerd today," said Wm. Denny, passenger conductor of the Northern Pacific on the Duluth-Staples train. It happened Thursday. The passenger was nearly an hour late from Duluth. There were extra coaches on the train and the engine pulled clear over the Sixth street crossing. City Engineer C. D. Peacock waited and waited and timed their stay with his Ingersoll watch. When the five minute mark was reached he went after conductor and crew and they backed up. Peacock, who is also a special officer, read the riot act to Denny and the rest. To add to the trainmen's troubles a hot box developed and repair men were adjusting that.

TURN OUT WITH CARS

Carl Zapffe, Chairman Public Affairs Committee, Calls on Auto Owners

Carl Zapffe, chairman of the public affairs committee of the Chamber of Commerce, urgently requests that all citizens with automobiles turn out at 7 A. M. tomorrow morning to proceed to Midland, and that all those citizens remaining home greet the party upon its arrival at the Ransford hotel before the noon hour, also use all possible decorations in store windows and on buildings. All plans will be carried out rain or shine. This is urgent and most important.

Herbert R. Denzene, Western Union Manager Here Five Months, Goes to Enlist in War

Herbert R. Denzene, who for the past five months has been the efficient manager of the Western Union Telegraph offices in this city, has resigned his position to enlist in the signal corps of the army. Mr. Denzene has been one of the most popular and obliging men in the telegraph service at Brainerd. Business increased constantly under his management and affairs were handled in fine shape.

Mr. Denzene has been temporarily succeeded by the general relief man, Wilbur Frewer, who, by the way, is an Elk from No. 307, Ishpeming, Mich. It is not known who Mr. Denzene's successor will be. Many are after the Brainerd position, as it is growing more important with added industries in Brainerd.

The many friends of Mr. Denzene wish him luck and advancement and glory, for they know he will give a good account of himself wherever he is placed.

BASEBALL NOTES

On Sunday the Bemidji nine will meet the fast McIntosh baseball team at Bemidji. The McIntosh team will be backed by Sather, the pitcher who played a sensational game with Fosston last year and who is repeating his record with the McIntosh team this year.

On July 3 and 4 the Pine River team will play with Bemidji at Bemidji.

On July 8 and 9 the Little Falls team will play at Bemidji. For one of these games Pitcher Joseph LaForce, of Port Ripley, will be in the Bemidji lineup.

Many other games are being arranged by Manager Ericson of the Bemidji team, Grand Forks, Brainerd and possibly the famous Hibbing team being among the list.

The Little Falls Transcript has it doped out that most of Brainerd is going to Little Falls to see the Little Falls-Brainerd game. The paper says that Little Falls fans are promised two of the best ball games of the season next week. Staples will play at Little Falls Sunday and the Brainerd team comes down July 4th.

Staples has an unusually good team this year. Anderson, the Staples pitcher, is said to be a coming big leaguer and has established an enviable record in the scarcity of his opponents' hits. In the last three games, according to reports, only three hits have been made off him. He is backed up by a good lineup. Staples beat Verndale with about the same edge over the latter team that Little Falls had last Sunday. Joe LaForce of Port Ripley, who has beaten Little Falls twice this year, will pitch, as Harris Gourd is to be saved for the Fourth of July game.

Some kick is being made about Connie Mack as it is said he is taking his team around for many extra exhibition games and thus gathering in additional shekels.

The Fort Ripley team has played one long string of victories this year and wants a game with Brainerd. LaForce and Tucker make an efficient battery.

THE LATTER WILL BE IN FIELD

Verndale, it is said, Will be Braced up by Northern League Men, Chicken Pitching

Verndale plays Brainerd here on Sunday. Noel is expected to pitch for the locals and Brainerd will be strengthened in the field by Russ and Victor, of Ironton.

Verndale, it is thought, will be reinforced by Northern League men, and will have the redoubtable Chickens on the mound. Verndale is a team which very nearly won from Brainerd in the last clash, the score being 3 to 2 in favor of Brainerd, Chicken pitching. It was a ten inning game, replete with thrills.

The game Sunday will in all probability excel that and the fans can expect championship ball.

HEAVY TRAFFIC

Enormous Receipts Reported by the Northern Pacific Railway Company in June

Evidence of the remarkably heavy movement of all classes of freight in the northwest is afforded in the statement of earnings of the Northern Pacific railroad for the first two weeks of June.

The road's gross revenue for that period was reported at $2,932,000 has been exceeded only once for that period in seven years. In 1910 its earnings for the first half of June were $3,082,000. Northern Pacific gross revenue for the fiscal year up till June 14 were almost $72,000,000 and it is estimated that they will run close to $75,000,000 for the full year. This will be the largest total ever piled up by the system, the only years anywhere nearly approaching it being 1907 and 1910.

The company's surplus for the fiscal year ending June 30 is placed at between 10 and 11 per cent on the $248,000,000 common stock outstanding, compared with 7.75 per cent last year.

ARE LINING UP FOR FIGHT

Mexican Troops Move into Advantageous Positions.

Columbus, N. M., June 30.—According to reports received here 30,000 Carranzista cavalry have been mobilized at Bustillo on the Mexican Northwestern, 12,000 men are at Villa Ahumada, 2,000 are at Guzman, and General P. Elias Calles of Sonora is moving large bodies of troops toward the Sonora-Chihuahua border.

If these reports are true the enveloping movement of the Mexicans around General Pershing's army is becoming more and more pronounced.

Army officers say, however, that the American commander is readjusting his men to meet every move.

Made Dumas Retract.

The elder Dumas was once asked for stating in one of his novels, "La Route de Varennes," that the capture of Louis XVI. and Marie Antoinette at Varennes by the revolutionaries was due to the action of the Chevalier de Prefontaine in shutting the door of his house on the fugitives.

A grandson of the Chevalier considered this an aspersion on his ancestor's chivalry and proved in court that the statement was untrue.

An order was issued compelling Dumas' publisher to call in all copies of the novel and to issue within one month a fresh edition with a note that De Prefontaine placed his house at the disposal of the royal fugitives.

WATER & LIGHT BOARD MEETING

Committee of Electrical Union Presents a Schedule of Wages for Consideration

MATTER UP AT NEXT MEETING

Coal Contract Awarded to John Larson, Subject to Test—Regular Board Meetings Set

All members of the water and light board were present. A committee from the electrical union presented a schedule of wages and asked that the same be considered by the board. It was taken under advisement and will be brought up at the next board meeting.

The result of coal tests made at the station were submitted by the secretary. The contract was awarded John Larson, subject to such test.

New water mains were petitioned for, to be located at Twelfth and Maple streets. A four inch main is to be laid on Twelfth street between Norwood and Maple streets and on Maple street between Twelfth and Thirteenth streets. A fire hydrant was ordered placed at the corner of Twelfth and Maple and a drain is to be installed at the terminal of the main.

Well No. 10, in the search for a new water supply, has attained considerable depth and samples of water from depth 20 to 31 feet, have been ordered sent the state board of health.

A contract is to be closed with Tom Mansuras who desires electric service at Lam Park. The secretary was instructed to ask the city council to execute the contract. Bills of water and light departments were allowed. The payrolls were allowed subject to the confirmation of the next meeting.

The city engineer was requested to furnish reports of tests at Spring Bay on the Elder flats by July 15. President P. W. Donovan reported verbally on the progress attained in testing water.

Five inch Johnson well screens are to be disposed of at $40 each and the five inch wrought iron pipe is to be charged for at the market price less freight.

On motion of Commissioners Weldemann and Rowley the regular meetings of the water and light board are to be held the last Tuesday of each month.

MINNESOTA STATE MILITIA

It May be Several Weeks Before They Entrain for the Border is Information Received (By United Press)

Camp Bobleter, Ft. Snelling, Minn., June 30.—A state wide appeal to patriotic Minnesotans who want to do their share for their nation in this crisis, but can't go to war or send a son, was made today by guard officers.

Although Gov. J. A. A. Burnquist in a proclamation issued one week ago today, asked for money to help Minnesota's national guard, to buy necessities as well as luxuries for the men at the front, there was not a single cent sent to the fund today.

The appeal is state wide, officers reminded the public and it is asked that the public send the money to A. C. Gooding, state treasurer, at the state capitol building, St. Paul. The funds will be used for caring for dependants of militiamen, if the federal government don't provide for them. If the federal government does provide for them, it is proposed to use the fund to make the Minnesota troops more comfortable.

Just two elements stood forth today, it is said, to strengthen the argument that it may be several weeks

Their existence is admitted by privates and others in close touch with Minnesota's military affairs, however.

About the only spirited rivalry in the camp is among the 116 cooks of the 55 camps. Each wants to have the neatest kitchen—and each in civilian life, ranks from bank clerk to plumber.

Three hundred gallons of milk, three hundred gallons of buttermilk and five hundred pounds of butter daily is what the Minnesota guard has ordered.

Expert Advice For the Automobile Owner

Queries and Replies Covering Matters of Importance to the Man Who Runs a Car

Will you kindly describe a universal joint and its action?

A universal joint is a mechanism that is designed to have free angular movement with positive rotary movement. Its function is to allow two shafts at varying angles to each other to have a positive driving connection.

Can you tell me the difference, if any, between a torsion, torque, strut and radius rod?

Torsion rods, torque rods, torsion tubes and torque arms are all the same in office. This office is to prevent a live driving axle from twisting axially in response to its own and the vehicle's inertia instead of transmitting the torque of the drive. In other words, all of these devices are to resist the torque reaction. The torque is the twisting effort of the driving means, whose object is to turn the wheels. There are two general forms of torque members, the torsion tube and the torque arm. The torsion tube is a tubular inclosure for the driving shaft, which is usually yoked or otherwise pivoted to the frame at its front. The reaction of the axle in driving causes it to press on the underside of the frame. The reaction in braking is in the reverse direction and causes it to pull downward on the frame. A torque arm has a similar mission, but it is in the form of an arm, either to one side or directly under the driving shaft.

The radius rod or strut rod is a member designed to keep the axle in place against its tendency to move forward under driving stress or to move backward when the brakes are applied. The terms are synonymous.

Would it be better for starting my motor to shorten the intake manifold and use a cowl gasoline tank? Would it improve the pulling to any extent?

Probably beneficial results as far as motor operation is concerned would come from raising the carburetor and shortening the intake, as you would give last chance for condensation of the fuel, but it is doubtful if the results obtained would warrant the expense and trouble.

The gasoline tank on my six cylinder car is on the rear end of the car, and the gasoline is forced up to an auxiliary tank on the dash. It then flows down to the carburetor. I also have a four cylinder car, and the gasoline tank is under the front seat, and the gasoline flows from there to the carburetor. When running very slowly for twenty minutes in hot weather the gasoline will stop flowing to the carburetor, and the car stops. If I wait five minutes the gasoline will begin to flow again and everything will work properly. Both cars work exactly alike in this respect. Can you give me some advice on this?

The fact that two cars act the same renders this a very mysterious state of affairs, but there are two explanations which may fit the case. The first explanation is that there are air locks in the piping. It very often happens that in installing the gasoline line large vertical bends are allowed to occur in the piping. When this happens there are certain times when the gasoline will be drawn away and what corresponds to a large bubble will form in the bend. The result is that the gasoline is choked and cannot flow until this bubble is broken, which occurs due to the weight of the gasoline after a few moments' wait. When the gasoline is again drawn through the piping another bubble is apt to form and the same occurrence happens again.

The second explanation for your trouble is that instead of the gasoline ceasing to flow the condition of running on a rich mixture for twenty minutes results in flooded engine, which will not again operate until sufficient gasoline has evaporated to bring the mixture down to the range of explosiveness. Above and below this range a mixture of air and gasoline will not explode. With the ordinary carburetor the auxiliary air valve will remain closed at very low speeds, with the result that practically all of the suction of the motor falls upon the jet and nothing but raw gasoline is drawn into the manifold. After running a short time in this condition, with more gasoline being drawn into the manifold than is being used, the motor is choked and stops. When you wait for five minutes, as you say, the accumulated gasoline evaporates, with the result that an explosive mixture is again formed and the car will run properly until the same condition is again set up.

The remedy for the trouble is either to make a lighter adjustment on the air valve or to install some device admitting extra air to the manifold. A number of these are on the market and can be attached by simply tapping into the intake manifold and by installing a control system to the steering column or some convenient position in the car. Whenever the mixture becomes super-rich, so that it is necessary to dilute it with an extra supply of air, this can be done from the driver's seat. Such an installation not only guards against the trouble which you mentioned, but also permits a reduction in your gasoline bills by making a leaner mixture for higher speeds at which the car is practically continuously run during a tour through the country.

There is a knock in my car. I have just taken up the bearings, but the noise still continues. It seems to be in the front part of the motor and has a metallic sound like a loose connecting rod. Could you suggest where this might be?

If the bearings are all in good shape look for the trouble at the piston of one of the front cylinders. It might be a piston slap due to the piston being under size, or it might be in the wrist pin bearing. Possibly there is a broken ring on one of the front pistons; but, at any rate, examine them to determine just where it is. It would be difficult to lay the trouble at any point without examination of the engine.

I am having trouble with the differential of my car. Have broken two drive shaft pinions, two drive or ring gears and three differential cross pinions, also the differential thrust bearing balls and ball races are giving trouble. The differential makes a grinding noise when running. Would tightening the wheels on the axle cause any part of this trouble? Please tell me how to assemble and adjust these parts to eliminate the trouble.

It is imperative when installing a new differential that you see that it runs free in the axle housing and that there is no binding whatever. If the differential is too tight it will have a tendency to cut out the races. To overcome this we believe that it might be well to cut out a portion of the housing behind the ball race so that the differential will turn freely.

The growling noise is caused by the pinion and the ring gear meshing too tight. It is practical at all times to make sure that there is a certain amount of backlash in the pinion gear, and, further, one must make sure that the pinion gear is meshing level with the ring gear.

It is impossible to tighten the wheels too tight to cause any of the trouble you are having, as the axle shafts are tapered and on this account the wheel is drawn up on the taper.

What is a high speed motor? Is it correct balance of motor parts and correct valve and ignition timing that make them run up to 3,000 to 3,400 r. p. m.?

By the term high speed motor is meant a motor so designed as to balance, timing and port and valve sizes that it can be run up to unusually high crankshaft speeds without a falling off in power developed and without undue vibration. The term high speed is relative, but engines running a crankshaft speed greater than 2,000 r. p. m. may be considered a high speed motor.

The speed indicating dial of my speedometer oscillates back and forth. Can you tell me how to remedy this?

Try tightening the swivel joint on the end of the flexible shaft near the gear. Also strap the shaft to the radius rod of the car, thus preventing it from swinging. If this does not stop your trouble the inside parts of the speedometer must be worn out and will have to be renewed.

The timing gears in my four cylinder runabout rattle. How can I remedy this?

The rattle you hear is undoubtedly due to excessive wear. The back lash in the gears causes the noise. Would advise you to install new timing gears.

Which of two bulbs would use the more current, a four candlepower or a fifteen candlepower that is dimmed to four? If any, about how many amperes on a six volt system?

The fifteen candle power that was dimmed to four candle power would use more current on any system, as some is being wasted in going through a resistance.

Can you tell me what is the matter with my car? When the motor is speeded up it begins to miss badly on different cylinders. A new carburetor does not relieve the trouble nor does the grinding of the valves, installing a new timer and coil box. The compression is good, however. I bought a new battery outfit also. In addition to the above difficulties there is constant heating. At first I thought the trouble was in the radiator and bought a new one, but this did not remedy the trouble. A pump helped slightly.

It seems from your description of the difficulties that originally the trouble was due to improper high speed adjustment of the carburetor, particularly if, as you did not say, the motor ran well on low speeds. Had you not had the same trouble after putting on the new ignition system a second cause might have been a badly worn timer, but inasmuch as with a new timer installed the same trouble continued, it seems to point to carburetor. It is suggested that you get a good carburetor man on it for adjustment.

The heating which occurred after installation of the new battery outfit in all probability is due to the fact that you carry the spark too far retarded. If it is hand control try keeping the spark advanced as far as possible without knocking. If you cannot cause a spark knock by advancing the spark and do not get a kick on cranking with the spark pretty well advanced it is almost certain that your ignition is too late. Late spark is sure to cause heating.

WAR IN MEXICO MEANS LONG STAY

Many In Favor of Maintaining Protectorate Over Country.

MAY ALSO ANNEX TERRITORY

Underwood Points Out That American People Are Unwilling to Spill Blood and Spend Money With Purely Altruistic Motives In View—Must Continue to Protect Border.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, June 30.—[Special.]—If Mexico loses territory, if that country becomes subject to the United States to any extent, the blame will rest upon those Mexican leaders who have forced the crisis. It will rest primarily upon Carranza and Villa, two leaders that our government have tried to aid. It will rest upon those who hoped to unite Mexico by a common war against the United States, the leader of which might become the Mexican dictator.

That Mexico will lose territory there seems to be little doubt, or that some sort of protectorate will follow seems inevitable. Senator Underwood of Alabama, who is a wise observer, says that the American people will not fight a purely altruistic contest in Mexico.

Will Want Results.

"A war simply to secure peace in that country," he said, "to establish a stable government and then retire without anything to show for our efforts save the purely altruistic, will not satisfy the American people. Where American blood has been shed and American money spent there will be a demand for some recompense, and it will be the annexation of adjacent territory or maintaining a protectorate so as to insure peace for our people who live along the border and have property interests in Mexico."

Senator Underwood voices a prevailing idea among many men. Intervention means a long stay in Mexico.

Senators Were There.

The prominent part which United States senators take in the national conventions is an interesting feature of the great quadrennial contests. At Chicago Senator Harding of Ohio presided over the convention; Senator Lodge of Massachusetts was chairman of the committee on platform; Senator Smoot was chairman of credentials and an important figure in the whole proceedings, as he was also chairman of the committee which negotiated with the Progressives. Senator Borah of Idaho was a member of that committee and made speeches in both the Republican and Progressive conventions.

Weeks, Cummins, La Follette and Sherman were candidates before the convention. Others who loomed up considerably or were delegates were Brady of Idaho, Catron and Fall of New Mexico, Kenyon of Iowa, Penrose and Oliver of Pennsylvania, Lippitt of Rhode Island, Sutherland of Utah and Wadsworth of New York.

Democratic Senators.

At St. Louis James C. Kentucky was permanent chairman, Stone of Missouri was chairman of the resolutions committee, while others who took prominent parts were: Hollis of New Hampshire, Walsh of Montana, Hughes of New Jersey, Kern and Tamm of Indiana, Johnson of Maine, Saulsbury of Delaware, Martin and Swanson of Virginia, Lewis of Illinois, Owen and Gore of Oklahoma, Newlands and Pittman of Nevada, Phelan of California, Smith of South Carolina, Pomeroy of Ohio, Reed of Missouri, Williams and Varian of Mississippi.

Fattening the Record.

The Congressional Record has been extended a great deal in order to make ready for the campaign. Almost every political speech and document bearing on politics has been printed to be used under the free franking privilege in case it is considered good campaign material.

Hampton Moore Protests.

Congressman Moore of Philadelphia is in a protesting mood. "I enter my protest against this 'government by rule' or even by unanimous consent agreement," he told the house recently. There are quite a number of other members who have made similar protests, but business in the house goes on pretty much the same way. Just at that particular time Moore was protesting against the agreements which Minority Leader Mann had made and was somewhat inclined to rebel against his party leader.

Russell For Pensions.

Congressman Russell of Missouri, who has had a great deal to do in handling pension legislation, reviewed the pension work of the session in a recent speech, showing that much had been done to take care of the old soldiers of the civil war. He has been an earnest worker to this end. In the course of his remarks he said that he had a brother who fought on the Confederate side. It frequently happened that families were divided in border states.

Sharp Contests.

There are some sharp contests between the houses and between congress and the administration, but none quite so bitter as that over the post-office appropriation bill. The department has been insisting upon legislation which has been resisted by the senate with a great deal of vigor. This bill may delay adjournment.

Albuquerque, N. M., June 30.—Amos Pinchot has been named to take the place of William J. Bryan on the committee of the American Union Against Militarism.

Mr. Bryan, in an interview published in St. Paul, Minn., declined to serve on the commission designed to mediate in the present crisis with Mexico.

WILSON SAYS PUT IDEALS INTO ACTION

Philadelphia, June 30.—"America first," translated into what you do," was the new patriotic rallying cry sounded by President Wilson in an address to the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World in Independence square here.

"America first means nothing," he said, "until you translate it into what you do."

Tremendous applause swept over the crowd when the president uttered these words.

He quietly silenced the interruption and continued speaking to the subject of "The Duties of Americans to Their Country and to the Rest of the World."

"America," he continued, "at present is at a point where it is not only necessary to understand our ideals, but to be ready to put them into action at any cost. It is one thing to understand them, but it is another thing to make them work."

"You cannot understand the people of the United States without working for them. I want you to understand that I am not interested in fighting for myself, but I am interested in fighting for the things I believe in. In so far as we are concerned, I challenge all comers."

OUR NATIONAL

The Eagle Was Selected of Franklin's Progeny

HE FOUGHT FOR THE TOWN

In His Judgment the Barnyard Dignitary Was the Better American and More Truly Typified the Young Nation Than Did the Bully of the Air.

Few probably have ever given it thought as to why we adopted the eagle as our national bird, and not many are aware that our forefathers gave considerable thought to the subject. The eagle is in no way significant of America and is not a purely American bird. When the subject was mooted at the beginning of our existence as a nation there was considerable preference for the turkey as the national bird, and if Benjamin Franklin, who was called upon to discuss and decide many ticklish questions, had had his way our bald eagle would never have arisen above the status of a hawk robber, while the barnyard dignitary would have aired his vanity on everything from the national seal down to a quarter.

Even with all our republican ideas, when this nation was born, we still possessed a touch of heraldry, and the fathers regarded the selection of proper heraldic arms as a most essential feature of the conception of a nation. In the earliest days the eagle was not considered, and at last when Franklin heard that it had been chosen he was sorely displeased.

John Hancock, immediately after the Declaration of Independence, turned his attention to the creation of a national flag and seal. He was an ardent antiquarian and had made an exhaustive study of heraldry, so he was careful to select such of his friends as he knew were competent to design and select the proper symbols. They were John Adams, Thomas Jefferson and Benjamin Franklin.

When Hancock's distinguished committee presented its first set of suggestions the congressional body was not satisfied with any of the devices, though they had developed them in numerous conclaves and with much laborious and conscientious study. Jefferson had worked out a shield divided into six sections, each containing something symbolical of one of the peoples that entered into the making of America.

There was the English rose, the French fleur de lis, the Scotch thistle, the Irish harp, the German eagle and the Dutch lion. Virtue and Justice supported the shield; above was the eye of Providence and below the motto, "E Pluribus Unum."

John Adams had the government represented as a powerful, herculean figure, with a giant club and standing between Virtue and Vice.

Franklin adopted the story of Pharoah pursuing the Hebrews into the Red sea, with the pillar of fire before the latter.

Note of these was pleasing, so the committee was dismissed, and in the ensuing years five distinct groups of men submitted over forty suggestions before the eagle, with his olive branch in one claw and his arrows in the other, finally satisfied congress, much to Franklin's dissatisfaction.

In June of the year 1782 congress finally permitted itself to acquiesce to the eagle design, and by that time the only thing that was left of the Franklin idea was the "E Pluribus Unum" that he had suggested to Jefferson in 1776.

Franklin, with his ideas of the fitness of things, could not approve of a bird which he knew from his observations to be a rascal among the denizens of the upper air. He affirmed that the eagle was a lazy bird and a great big bully, neither one of which he believed typified the young nation. He said that the eagle would not go out in search of food, but hung about and watched for the more industrious birds who would do so, and he would then attack them and take the food away from them.

Had Franklin had his way we should doubtless be offering premiums for the pelts of the bald eagle in the places where he is so fortunate as to survive and on the other hand would permit the aboriginal turkey to strut our forests and fields in peace and pride.

It was not in many things that the taste and will of Franklin did not carry with the colonial representatives, for there was no man more highly respected than he, so it is no speculation to say that we came very near having had the turkey on our seal instead of the eagle. Considering the fact that Franklin opposed the eagle, it is most surprising indeed that it was ever adopted at all.—Philadelphia Press.

Not a Bite of Breakfast Until You Drink Water

Says a glass of hot water and phosphate prevents illness and keeps us fit.

Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of combustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken day after day leaves in the alimentary canal a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not completely eliminated from the system each day, becomes food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels. From this mass of left-over waste, toxins and ptomaine-like poisons are formed and sucked into the blood.

Men and women who can't get feeling right must begin to take inside baths. Before eating breakfast each morning drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash out of the thirty feet of bowels the previous day's accumulation of poisons and toxins and to keep the entire alimentary canal clean, pure and fresh.

Those who are subject to sick headache, colds, biliousness, constipation, others who wake up with bad taste, foul breath, backache, rheumatic stiffness, or have a sour, gassy stomach after meals, are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store, and begin practicing internal sanitation. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on the subject.

Remember inside bathing is more important than outside bathing, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing poor health, while the bowel pores do. Just as soap and hot water cleanses, sweetens and freshens the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels.

Sad Faced Thinkers.

A patron of the library observes that the people who browse in the fiction department look happy and peaceful and contented, while the people who frequent the technical room look miserable. The phenomenon may be thus explained: The people in the technical room are engaged in thinking, and thinking is the most violent work that the human being does. A football player plunging through the line does not look happy. A runner winning a race wears a look of anguish. A man thinking is engaged in a more strenuous undertaking than football or foot racing. Of course he looks wretched.—Newark News.
